Dear Ezra:

I very much appreciate your giving me the opportunity of reading your article on religion as you had observed it in Russia. It is a very fine article and I do not believe it can be in any way interpreted to hinder the President's opportunity for improved relations with the Russian government.

It may be of interest to you that Mr. Khrushchev, in referring to the Camp David Spirit, made it clear that he did not mean "ideological disarmament." Your article states simply and effectively that all of us must indeed retain and build up our "ideological armament."

With best wishes.

Faithfully yours,
